When is the best time to transfer certification bodies?

A company can transfer their certificate at any time throughout the three-year life cycle of the ISO certification. However, we recommend contacting us at least three months before your certification expires.

What are the requirements to transfer an ISO certification to Certification Europe?

The minimum requirement is that the existing certification is accredited through a recognised accreditation body (INAB, UKAS, ANAB etc). Some additional documentation, such as previous audit reports, will also need to be provided, but our Sales Team will be happy to discuss this with you.

Transfer your ISO Certification to Certification Europe

What is involved in the transfer process?

1 Initial Application for Certification:

A member of the Sales Team will talk to you through the process.

2 Pre-Transfer Documentation and Quotation:

The Sales Team will issue a proposal to transfer your certification. They will also review the initial documentation such as your current ISO certificate.

3 Acceptance of ISO proposal of transfer:

When you are happy to proceed, the sales team will agree on a specific date to complete the transfer and ensure all documentation is in order.

4 Management system and documentation review:

Your assigned Assessor will complete a review of the ISO documentation and system.

5 Successful completion of assessment:

When the transfer assessment has been successfully completed, a new ISO certificate will be issued.
